

MA in Development Education and Global Learning

This course is taught within the Development Education Research Centre, an international hub for new thinking about development education and global learning. It is primarily an online and therefore distance learning course.

This course will:

- Introduce a range of perspectives and approaches to learning about development and global issues
- Re-assess the relationship between theory and practice in development education and global learning
- Examine where and how development education and global learning contributes to broader educational and development policy goals in diverse international contexts

MA in Development Education and Global Learning

For more information, please contact the Programme Leader:

Dr Douglas Bourn
tel: 020 3073 8309
email: d.bourn@ucl.ac.uk

To apply: www.ucl.ac.uk/apply
Admissions Office:
postgraduate-admissions@ucl.ac.uk

Start date: October 2017

The core modules are only available as distance learning courses.

Development Education and Global Learning focuses on learning about the ways in which people's lives around the world are linked.

It is also based on an understanding of the importance of critical thinking and the need to challenge stereotypes. Its goal is to enable people to develop the skills and confidence to support change towards a more just and sustainable world

Who is the course for?

Teachers and other educators who are interested in putting into practice learning about global and development issues.

People who manage and deliver development education and global learning or related programmes, particularly within NGOs, professional bodies and government departments.

Professionals in all sectors of education and learning who wish to apply development education principles and global learning practices within their work environment.

Course Structure

You will take two required modules on development education and global learning, and write a dissertation or a shorter report on the subject. You will also take two optional modules, which can include modules from other Masters' courses at the Institute of Education.

Entry Requirements

You should have a good honours degree or an equivalent qualification, and an interest in global and development issues within education and society in general. Some experience of working in development education, global learning or a related field is desirable.